Lot’s of fun!

I bought this for my grandsons for Christmas. We have played the game with them and found it lots of fun and educational as well. My 8 year old enjoyed asking his grandparents the questions and found it very funny when we got it wrong. The questions are for different levels. For my 5 year old we asked the easiest questions and he was able to answer most of them. I would definitely recommend this game and others in the series.

About Education Outdoors

When Tim Paczesny was nine years old, he dreamed of one day creating games. Years later, that dream became reality. In 2005, while Tim was gathering morel mushrooms with his wife and two daughters in Northern Michigan, one of his daughters noticed an animal track on the ground. She didn’t know what it was and asked her dad if he knew. Tim looked at the track and told her it was from a raccoon. “Dad, how did you learn all the things you know about nature?” his daughter asked. That question got Tim thinking: “What can I do to teach my kids more about the outdoors?”

Also during this time, Tim was part of a non-profit organization he founded called The League of Extraordinary Outdoorsmen. At the League’s annual family fishing day, Tim realized the need to educate all children and their families about the outdoors. As he pondered how to do this, he realized he had stumbled upon the perfect way to fulfill his boyhood dream. Tim quickly got to work, developing 400 questions and 100 fun facts for a game that would educate people of all ages about the outdoor world he loved. A year later, his first game, CAMP – The Game that Grows With You, was complete, and the Education Outdoors company was born. Since then, Tim has developed the CAMP Travel Edition as well as seven additional games centered around exploring the outdoors. Today, Tim and his wife Susan run Education Outdoors in Eastport, Michigan, where they, and their dedicated employees, enjoy creating games that bring families together.
